Description:

Our unique natural farming inputs are rooted in a deep connection to Jamaica's land and people.

At Jamaican Organics, we don't just source our raw materials; we partner with farmers across the island to provide them with training in natural poultry farming techniques, teaching methods like feed fermentation and beneficial microbial coop and waste management. This partnership ensures that the chicken feathers we use for our high-quality, amino-acid rich biostimulants are sourced sustainably, ethically, and free from agricultural contaminants.

But our commitment to Jamaican soil doesn't stop there. We cultivate the indigenous microbiology from multiple parishes across the island and use them to bioferment our products. This means that our products are uniquely suited to our local soil, giving your plants maximum benefit.

From our beneficial microbial inoculant to our living soil potting mix and natural biostimulants, you can be confident that our products are infused with the best of what Jamaica has to offer. Experience the difference for yourself and give your garden the natural boost it deserves.
